Benefitting from unprecedented levels of investment in recent years, Rochdale town centre is currently undergoing a £250 million improvement programme and Astor-Bannerman are pleased to be committed to assisting with their accessible Changing Places developments as part of this huge project.

The team at Astor-Bannerman worked with Rochdale Borough Council to install a brand new Changing Places toilet at Number One Riverside. As well as being home to Rochdale Borough Council offices, this publically accessible multi-use award-winning public building also incorporates a number of facilities for the public to enjoy including library, coffee shop, conference rooms customer information point and more.

The new Changing Places toilet at Number One Riverside is located on the ground floor and is a large 12sqm space giving comfort and privacy as well as vital specialist equipment to care for disabled visitors.

Changing Places include a changing table, hoist and room for 2 carers and are vital facilities for disabled people and their families. They provide a safe and comfortable place to go to the toilet and receive the care needed. Without Changing Places, care becomes virtually impossible and often families have to care for loved ones on dirty toilet floors or stay at home.
